Each entry lists a province (left column) and its 2–3 closest neighboring provinces reachable by major highways (right column). For example, Kabul connects by road to Wardak, Parwan, and Nangarhar 2 9. Similarly, Ghazni connects to Wardak and Kandahar 2 7 along the Ring Road (NH1). The citations above document the major road routes linking these provinces (e.g. the Ring Road and principal highways) 2 9 3 7 13 11 12 4 5 6 1.

Sources: Provincial connectivity is based on Afghanistan's major highways and road maps. The Ring Road (NH1) connects the sequence of provinces Kabul–Wardak–Ghazni–Kandahar–Nimruz–Herat–Faryab–Jawzjan–Balkh–Baghlan and back to Kabul 2. Other major roads include the Kabul–Jalalabad Highway linking Kabul with Nangarhar 9 and the Kabul–Kandahar Highway passing through Wardak, Ghazni, Zabul, and Kandahar 7. Additional provincial details (borders and roads) are documented in government and geographical sources 3 13 11 12 4 5 6 1. Each cited source identifies the provinces or road segments used to confirm connectivity.
